PRESS RELEASE

Gouda Refractories Expands!

An agreement for the acquisition of 15.000 m² of adjacent land and buildings has been reached with the city council of Gouda. With this acquisition the ambitions and further development of Gouda Refractories can be realised.

The construction of a new fully automatic mixing line for high-grade refractory materials will already start at the end of November 2018. Construction works for a new head office will start soon and are scheduled for completion by mid-2019.

Other projects that can be realized through this expansion include the realization of cutting-edge laboratory facilities for product development and further improvements to the production process and logistics process.
